

Fact Sheet

July 12, 2011

These are the National Centers of Academic Excellence (CAEs) in Information Assurance Education (CAE/IAE) for the years 2011 through 2016:

Bowie State University	Maryland
Columbus State University	Georgia
Davenport University	Michigan
Ferris State University	Michigan
Hampton University	Virginia
Howard University	Washington, D.C.
Lewis University	Illinois
Louisiana Tech University	Louisiana
Mercy College	New York
Southern Illinois University, Carbondale	Illinois
University of South Alabama	Alabama
Wilmington University	Delaware

Additionally, these three academic institutions were newly designated as National Centers of Academic Excellence in Information Assurance Research (CAE-Rs) for the years 2011-2016:

Florida Institute of Technology	Florida
Rice University	Texas
University of Southern California	California

The National Security Agency and the U.S. Department of Homeland Security are also pleased to announce the completion of the second year of the National Centers of Academic Excellence in Information Assurance 2-year Education (CAE2Y) Program. These seven community colleges received this designation for the years 2011 through 2016:

College of Southern Maryland	Maryland
Community College of Baltimore County	Maryland
Erie Community College	New York
Inver Hills Community College	Minnesota
Owens Community College	Ohio
Richland College	Texas
Whatcom Community College	Washington

There are now a total of 118 colleges and universities designated as CAE/IAE; 50 as CAE-R; and 13 as CAE2Y. Thirty-six institutions are designated as both CAE/IAE and CAE-R. They are located in 40 states, the District of Columbia, and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico. There are 145 institutions participating in all of the CAE Programs.