

CLIP 7:

It is frequently said that leadership plans and intentions are the hardest intelligence to collect. And that's right. And I would suggest we seldom need spies or broken codes, valuable as those are, to figure out what our enemies are up to. They tell us with our words, with their words and actions, for all the world to see. We just need clear-eyed thinking about human nature and the inherent logic of events.