65484	21-Sep-2011	John Shepherd	My request is related to the Second World War. I am conducting archaeological and historical research on the activities from February 1944 to September 1945 of the 6811th Signal Security Detachment, based at Hall Place, Bexley, UK (formerly in Kent, now a London borough). Hall Place (where the 6811th were posted) was code named 'Santa Fe' and the 6811th were part of operation Ultra, engaged in the interception of encoded German communications. I would like access to any index of service histories or records of this unit. I would also like to see any documents, especially official orders and memorandums, related to the arrangements for the departure of the last contingent of the 6811th in August/September 1945 and what arrangements were made for their equipment. There is the potential that their radio equipment was abandoned on site when an anti-tank ditch was back filled. This assemblage would be, therefore, of great historical interest if it still exists.
