Dear Professor Milligan:

I am much indebted to you for your letter of 5 January and for the information which it contained regarding the Galland manuscript. In view of your courtesy in allowing me to keep the carbon copy, I do not think that I will find it necessary or desirable to obtain a copy of the microfilm.

With cordial greetings, I am,

Sincerely yours,

Professor B. A. Milligan

Dear Mr. Friedman:

Please forgive me for not answering your letter of November 20. Your more recent letter reminded me of my oversight.

Professor Galland's manuscript could not be published in book form because of the prohibitive cost, but it was microfilmed by University Microfilms, Ann Arbor, Michigan, at the expense of Northwestern University. Copies of the microfilm were sent to leading libraries in this country and abroad. I am not sure whether or not extra copies are available through University Microfilms or the Northwestern University Press.

If you care to keep the carbon copy you have, please feel free to do so.

Sincerely yours,
Burt A. Malloy

Dear Prof. Milligan:

On 20 November 1950 I wrote you concerning the late Prof. Galland's mss. of his bibliography of the literature on the anti-Stratfordian Theories. Not having had a reply, I am wondering if my letter ever reached you.

Would you be so good as to let me know if my letter went astray or if I may hear from you soon?

Thanking you for your courtesy, I am

Sincerely yours,

Prof. B. A. Milligan

Dear Prof. Milligan:

Some time in 1948 you sent me, at my request, the carbon copy of Prof. Galland's mss. of his bibliography of the literature on the anti-Stratfordian theories. What we had in mind, I believe, was that I would review the mss. prior to publication, as I did Prof. Galland's bibliography of cryptologic literature.

However, the pressure of work coupled with a long period when illness took from me much of the usual desire to do extra-curricular work of any sort in my field of interest, resulted in my not even looking at the mss. until yesterday.

I am now writing you to enquire as to the status of the project which Prof. Galland's untimely passing suspended. Is it still in a status of complete suspension or is somebody carrying it further? What is the situation so far as possible publication by Northwestern or has the work been published already by Northwestern or some other press?

Upon receipt of a reply I will better be able to know what to do with the carbon copy you furnished me. Thanking you in advance for your courtesy, I am,

Sincerely yours,

Prof. B. A. Milligan
