Dear Mr. Friedman:

It is always a very warm experience to thank you for your lecture. I regret very much that it was not possible for me to be here for your presentation. However, those who were present say that, as usual, it was a stimulating treatment of the subject. As a matter of fact, I was told that it was the best lecture given by you thus far. Undoubtedly, we can attribute that comment to the fact that it was possible to reserve more lecture time for you in this course.

Again, many thanks. Hope this letter finds you in better health. Please remember us to Elizabeth.

Kindest personal regards,

Larry
