MEMORANDUM FOR THE RECORD

SUBJECT: Disposal of Excess Converter M-209

1. After V-E Day this Agency attempted to block sale of Converter M-209 on the open market as surplus property. These attempts were not successful because it was claimed that the machine is unclassified and can be obtained from the Hagelin Company by anyone. On the other hand, the feeling in Army Security Agency is that the sale of the machine would not materially benefit the civilian economy, while its availability in large quantities at a low price would offer aid to any clandestine operators, would benefit cryptographers of some foreign governments, and would raise the level of cryptographic knowledge throughout the world. This belief was accentuated by the fact that several of the smaller foreign governments are known to be interested in obtaining some of the models being offered for sale in overseas theaters as surplus property.

2. As a result of growing alarm over the situation, Colonel Jones of Security Division on 19 February 1946 called Procurement and Distribution Service, CSigO, to determine the action necessary to block the sale of this device. Mr. Montgomery of that office told Colonel Jones that all theaters had been directed over the signature of Under Secretary of War Royall to sell as surplus any excess civilian items, but to return to the Z/I any repairable military items and to mutilate or destroy non-repairable military items before disposing of them as scrap. The instructions left to the Theater Commander the authority to classify supplies as military or civilian. Mr. Montgomery stated that instructions are enroute to Z/I Signal Depots designating the M-209 as a military item and that on 20 February 1946, a command channel radiogram would be sent to all theaters directing them to class the M-209 as a military item. ASA will receive an information copy of this radiogram.
