on the GLAMOUR FRONT

by Max Factor, Jr.

There is nothing more alluring than a beautifully exposed neckline. This season's fashions give wonderful opportunity to reveal this most feminine feature, so frankly seek admiration by pampering your neck with beauty care. Apply a good night cream before retiring, and protect the delicate skin during the day with hand lotion from either too much sun or raw, damp weather. When you wear the new plunging fashions, assure a sheer look of neck beauty by extending your foundation makeup below the gown's neckline. Then, like such motion picture stars as exquisite Elizabeth Taylor, reveal your lovely neck with elegant carriage, and you will reap a rich bounty of beauty.

THE WIVES

"Is that the only color you have in fan belts?"

More and more the sport of bowling has become popular among families. This month we would like to discuss an important phase of bowling—the delivery. Many bowlers use many different types of delivery, but we will deal with the most widely used one, the four-step delivery.

Extend the ball forward with the first step, which is taken with the right foot, and allow the ball to drop from just above the waist. Elbows should be kept close to your sides. Allow the left hand to guide the ball until approximately the beginning of the second step, at which time the left hand leaves the ball to aid in controlling your balance.

As the left foot comes forward to the second step, the ball should be at the lowest point of the back swing. Your body should lean forward throughout the entire approach, and from the second step, the right arm and wrist are kept straight.

At the third step, the ball is well back and ready for the forward swing. The shoulders are square, parallel to the foul line, the right arm swinging.

At the fourth step, the right arm begins the forward swing, both knees begin to bend, and the feet start to slide on the last step. The left arm has been employed for balance throughout the approach, and on the slide, the right leg also helps control your balance.

In the delivery the ball should pass close to your left ankle. The right arm and wrist should be in a straight line from the shoulder, continuing the swing. Your fingers should be a little to the side of the ball as you start to release it. The right foot should act as a brake and should be allowed to drag a little to control your momentum. The left foot should be pointing forward and your right foot should be turned slightly to the right.

Practice this delivery. You'll get more out of your game when you start to play it correctly.

DOTS AND FLASHES

Smart shoppers will find that this is a good month to purchase baby goods . . . If your silverware is beginning to look worn, you can replate it yourself. You can now buy pure silver in liquid form which will do the job by gently rubbing the solution over the silverware . . . Couples with crimped quarters might want to look into a midjet electric range. It's about 1/20th the size of a regular electric or gas range, but it has an infra-red heating element in its chrome-plated base on which you can grill hamburgers and broil steaks and chops. The top has two aluminum pots nestled in wells. One is a percolator, the other is for soup or vegetables.

miniature ski ball . . .

When the kids tire of the toys they're playing with and begin yelling that they have nothing to do, here's a game you can set up for them or else they can make themselves. It's sure to hold their interest—for a little while, anyway.

Take a large sheet of cardboard. Bend back one end of it to make it stand. Cut out six circular shapes as shown. You can use the bottom of a large bottle for outlining. Make sure that the circles will be larger than the ball you intend using. Mark the circles 25 to 100 as shown. The game can be played with any number of players. Stand ten feet away and take turns rolling the ball. The first player who scores 500 points win. If you prefer, you can make up your own rules.
