T+N approached Lorenz ^{et} to build teletype attachments for high speed L. I told them that they would not make any special parts or retrofit for them but would sell them such parts as they had. Gumsen gave cold shoulder to Weintraub, who then went to Olivetti, who will probably provide T/P parts for T+N. (Weintraub officially advisor on patents & is also member of board of directors.) The man working on machine here is Gundelinger in charge of design & production with Huebner advising on security aspects.
