WAR DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, JUNE 1, 1922.

THIS CODE BOOK, KNOWN AS "DIVISION FIELD CODE NO. 4," IS INTENDED FOR THE USE OF THE ARMY WITHIN THE CONTINENTAL LIMITS OF THE UNITED STATES. IT IS FORBIDDEN TO MAKE COPIES OF THIS CODE.

BY ORDER OF THE SECRETARY OF WAR:

JOHN J. PERSHING,
General of the Armies,
Chief of Staff.

OFFICIAL:

H. P. DAVIS,
Acting The Adjutant General.

H. P. DAVIS ERRATUM
 TO READ R. C. DAVIS

INSTRUCTIONS TO MESSAGE CENTER

1. This code book, to be known as "DIVISION FIELD CODE, NO. 4", abbreviated "DFC 4", is issued to message centers of division, brigade, regiment, and battalion. In peace time it may be issued to companies for training purposes.
2. Message center chiefs, before sending messages encoded by its use to troops not a part of a division, will ascertain that a copy of this code has been issued to the message center serving the unit addressed.
3. IN CASE OF LOSS OF THIS BOOK, NOTIFY SUPERIOR AUTHORITY AT ONCE, BURN IF IN DANGER OF CAPTURE.
4. All messages to be transmitted by radio personnel will be encoded in strict accordance with the form provided in the Radio Message Blank (Transmission).
5. The code groups in this code are of two kinds: (a) letters, (b) figures. The figure groups will be used only in cases where the message is to be transmitted by telephone or radiotelephone. Letter groups will be used for all other agencies of transmission.
6. If it becomes necessary to modify the wording of a message to facilitate its encoding, the modified text will, if practicable, be submitted to the office which originated the message for approval. When this is impracticable the judgment of the officer in charge of the message center will determine whether or not the change will be made. A copy of the modified message will be submitted to the originating office for its information.
7. A "clear" (English) copy of a message will never be filed with its equivalent code text. If it is necessary to attach the two for any reason, the clear text must be paraphrased carefully by changing the order of the words, the tense of verbs, etc., as much as possible without changing the meaning and intent of the message.
and at the end
8. On the bottom of each page of the vocabulary there appear BLANKS, that is code groups to which no meanings have been assigned. Meanings for these groups will be assigned only by higher authority.

PRECED E EVERY MESSAGE IN THIS CODE BY "DFC 4"

MEMORIZE THIS CODE GROUP: ABAB - CODE LOST!

The enemy code breakers are "always on the job!"
ARE YOU HELPING THEM?

9. READ THE FOLLOWING PRECAUTIONS BEFORE USING THIS BOOK AND CAREFULLY OBSERVE THEM.

(a) For instruction purposes in time of peace, this code book should be freely used. In time of war, its use should be limited to actual necessity. Routine reports make the best material for the enemy code breakers; they should be transmitted by means other than radio whenever possible.

(b) NEVER send in code a message which has been sent previously in clear.

(c) NEVER send in clear a message which has been sent previously in code.

(d) NEVER repeat a message in any code or cipher other than the one in which it was originally transmitted.

(e) NEVER insert clear text words, phrases, punctuation marks, or abbreviations in a coded message.

(f) NEVER use the syllabary unless absolutely necessary. The syllabary is the weakest part of the code. The more you use it, the easier you make the work of the enemy code solvers. When the same words must be spelled out several times in the same message, try to spell them out in as many different ways as they occur, by taking advantage of the various syllables given in the syllabary. For example, the word "memorandum" can be spelled in the following different ways:

me-mo-ra-nd-u-m

me-mo-r-and-u-m

me-mo-r-an-du-m

m-em-or-and-u-m

m-em-o-re-nd-u-m

Moreover, in each of these ways, different code groups may be used for the same letter or syllable, as explained in the succeeding paragraph.

(g) Where two or more code groups are assigned to the same letter, number, syllable, word, or phrase, the different code groups, called "variants", should be used at random, or haphazard, so that in a series of messages each of them will appear about the same number of times. In particular, no group should ever appear twice in the same message, unless absolutely unavoidable.

(h) On each page of the encoding section there are printed a number of code groups called "mills". These are groups having no significance, and their careful use will make the work of the enemy code solvers more difficult. They should be placed at irregular intervals, using one or more of them to about each ten groups of the message. They should be used to disguise short messages which would otherwise consist of less than five groups, and especially around code groups representing letters, syllables, or numbers.

CORRECTION OF ERRORS

Errors in the copying and telegraphic transmission of code messages are almost impossible to avoid. Such errors are due most often to the substitution of incorrect letters for the correct ones, and occasionally to the transposition or interchange of a pair of letters. The code groups in this book have been constructed upon a system which permits of the easy correction of most of such errors, and a careful study of these pages will enable you to save much time in decoding mutilated messages.

The code groups consist of combinations, or more strictly speaking, permutations of four letters in five definite arrangements of vowels and consonants. They are as follows:

- | | | |
|-----|---|------------|
| (1) | Vowel - consonant - vowel - consonant | (Ex. ABAB) |
| (2) | Vowel - consonant - consonant - vowel | (Ex. ABCA) |
| (3) | Consonant - vowel - consonant - vowel | (Ex. BAPB) |
| (4) | Consonant - vowel - vowel - consonant | (Ex. BAAD) |
| (5) | Consonant - vowel - consonant - consonant | (Ex. BAMP) |

A code group which does not conform to one of these five types of groups may therefore be recognized immediately as having been mutilated or garbled. For example, such groups as AEBB, ABAB, AOBN, BBAD, and the like, are obviously incorrect. If this obvious fact escapes the notice of the decoder, it will become apparent soon enough when he fails to find the group in the decoding section.

The code groups have been constructed in such a manner, by means of the PERMUTATION TABLE shown on the inside of the back cover, that each code group differs from every other code group by at least two letters. It is easy to see how this is brought about by examining the permutation table. Each code group is composed of two halves, an initial pair of letters taken from the left hand rectangle, and a final pair of letters taken from the right hand rectangle, and in every case both pairs must lie in the same horizontal line. Thus, for example, the code group DIJO consists of the initial pair DI, taken from line 3, rectangle 1, and the final pair JO, taken from the same line in rectangle 2. The initial pair DI may be combined with any one of the final pairs on the same line with it in rectangle 2, such as AD, EX, CE, etc., giving rise to the code groups DIAD, DIBX, DICZ, etc.; on the other hand, the final pair JO, for example, may be combined with any one of the initial pairs on the same line with it in rectangle 1, such as AD, BA, CE, etc., giving rise to the code groups ADJO, BAJO, CEJO, etc. Since the initial pairs in each line differ among themselves throughout by two letters, either as regards the letters themselves, or the positions occupied by the letters, it is clear that all combinations made by suffixing any one of the final pairs on the same line with them in rectangle 2 must differ by at least two letters; likewise, since the final pairs in each line differ among themselves throughout by two letters, either as regards the letters themselves, or the positions occupied by the letters, it follows that all combinations made by prefixing any one of the initial pairs on the same line with them in rectangle 1 must differ by at least two letters. Since a given initial pair or a given final pair appears but once in each rectangle, it follows that all the code groups must differ from one another by at least two letters.

The decoding section lists only the code groups made possible by the permutation table, and in this code not all the possible code groups are listed. (All code groups of the form vowel - consonant - consonant - consonant, e.g., ABBJ, with the exception of 60 such groups have been omitted. These exceptions have been inserted, but no meanings assigned to them, in order to provide 100 groups to each page of the decoding section, for the sake of uniformity.) Now if one letter in a code group has been changed through an error made in copying, transmission or reception-- and it is fortunately true that most errors in code messages involve only ^{one} letter per group--the incorrect code group can not be found in the decoding section, and thus gives notice in itself that it has been mutilated. Reference to the permutation table will quickly show a very limited number of groups of which the incorrect group may be a mutilation. Suppose we have the following portion of a message:

.... POMB IJUL BEAC MCHG SUYW YKEF
 woods on hill (?) and 572

The group MCHG is obviously incorrect, since it is not in the decoding section. Assuming that an error of only one letter is involved in this group, we write down the four possibilities, leaving a dash for the first, second, third, and fourth letters which are to be found by reference to the permutation table. Thus:

- O H G
 M - H G
 M O - G
 M O H -

We now look for the final pair HG in rectangle 2, follow the line in which it appears straight across to rectangle 1, and look for an initial pair whose second letter is O. We find the initial pair QO, which means that the correct group may be QCHG. In this same line in rectangle 1, we now look for an initial pair whose first letter is M, finding the pair MA, which means that the correct group may be MARG. We next look for the initial pair MO in rectangle 1, follow the line in which it appears straight across to rectangle 2, and look for one final pair ending with G, and another pair beginning with H. We find the pairs ZG and HW, respectively, which means that the correct group may be either MOZG, or MCEW. We now have the following, for which we find the meanings by reference to the decoding section:

-OHG	=	QOHG	meaning	barrage
M-EG	=	MAHG	"	consolidate
MO-G	=	MOZG	"	571-st
MCH-	=	MCEW	"	approach

It is obvious that of these four possibilities MOZG is the only one which fits the context, and we have:

.... POHB IJUL BRAC MOZG SUIW YKEF
 woods on hill 571 and 572

The possibilities for the groups MO-G and MCH- may, of course, be found directly from the decoding section, without reference to the permutation table, so that it is necessary to refer to the permutation table only for the possibilities for the first and second letters, and immediately refer to the decoding section. It is often wise to refer the error to a false grouping of the Morse characters. In this case, for example, the letter Z (American Morse ...) was received as H (....), changing the group MOZG to MOHG.

If the meaning of none of the possible groups found by assuming a one-letter error fits the context, then we assume that a transposition of a pair of letters has occurred, that is, a pair of letters have exchanged positions, a not uncommon error. Suppose we have the following:

.... GQGA BUVI AJUN
 hostile (?) troop

Assuming a one-letter mutilation, we have the following:

-UVY	=	QUVI	=	required
R-VY	=	XVVI	=	682-mi
HU-Y	=	HUVY	=	might be
HUV-	=	HUVU	=	zero

None of these meanings fit in properly with the context, and hence we assume that a transposition of a pair of letters has occurred. The most common transpositions involve only adjacent or alternate letters, the error being made usually in copying or reading.

The following are the possibilities:

Transposition of 1st and 2nd letters:	EUVI = UENI.	Meaning: not in decoding section.
" " 2nd and 3rd "	EUVI = EVUI.	Impossible group.
" " 3rd and 4th "	EUVI = EYVI.	Meaning: cavalry.
" " 1st and 3rd "	EUVI = VUEI.	Meaning: not in decoding section.
" " 2nd and 4th "	EUVI = RYVI.	Meaning: " " "

The one and only possibility, EUYV, with the meaning "cavalry", fits in very nicely with the context.

If the trial of the transposition of a pair of letters fails to give the correct group, we may assume that two letters have been mutilated and are substituted by incorrect letters. We may then assume any two letters of the group to be correct, and find all the possible code groups of which they may be parts, as given by the permutation table. For example, if the group UHBT has been examined for a one-letter mutilation, and also for a possible transposition of a pair of letters, and no good results have been obtained, we may assume the letters UH to be correct and try all the code groups given in the decoding section under UH. If that fails, then HB are assumed to be correct, the permutation table is consulted, and we find the following possibilities:

YHBJ UHBZ OHRX IHSW EHBV AHBT

If that produced no good results, we would assume BT to be correct, and find the following possibilities:

AHBT, EJBT, EAST, GBT, ^{HIBT,} IBT, JOBT, KIBT, LYBT, OIBT, UMBT, YHBT.

If that produced no good results, we would assume U-B- to be correct; then -E-T; then U--T. If a two-letter mutilation is involved, this process will uncover it, and in every case an attempt should be made to find a logical origin for such an error by referring to the Morse characters. In the case above, the group UHBT arose from a false grouping of the letters DA, in the code group UEDA. Thus:

D A = _ _ . . _ _

B T = _ _ . . . _ _
